Glossary

Welcome to THE GOOD GUIDE.

We want to help you make the most of eBay and raise as much money as possible. So, before we get started, here are a few terms you will come across on your eBay for Charity journey and what they all mean. Don't worry, we promise this guide will be jargon free.

Auction:

This is where you list an item for a set amount of time, with potential buyers able to place a bid to purchase. At the end of the auction, the buyer with the highest bid wins that item.

Buy It Now:

This is where you set a fixed price on your listing so your supporters can purchase your item immediately.

Community Selling:

This is when a seller on eBay.co.uk chooses to donate a percentage of their sale (between 10% and 100%) to a charity of their choosing.

Direct Selling:

This is when a charity sells directly on behalf of their organisation. Charities can also set up trusted individuals as Direct Sellers to sell on their behalf, with 100% of funds from their sales going directly to the charity account registered. Any charity who trades on the eBay.co.uk platform should do so via Direct Selling to benefit from our special charity rate.

Final Value Fees:

When your items sell, you will pay only one Final Value Fee, consisting of a variable percentage of the total amount of the sale (including shipping, taxes and any other applicable fees), plus a fixed charge per order. The charity rate is 1.1% +17p per transaction (VAT not included), and charities will not have to pay third party payment processing fees.

Give at Checkout:

This is our way of helping buyers on eBay.co.uk donate any time they shop using PayPal. Each week there is a new featured charity, chosen by eBay, which appears as the default charity when people 'checkout'. However, buyers can choose to donate to any charity registered with us at checkout, so it's a great thing to shout about to your supporters. All they need to do is 'favourite' your charity on their account and you will show up when checking out.

High Profile Auction:

UK charities, organisations or individuals can use eBay to auction off memorabilia or experiences. This is a great way to use eBay if your charity has access to items donated by celebrities or ‘money can’t buy’ style experiences that will raise a lot of media interest and money.

Insertion Fees:

As a charity you’ll pay standard Insertion Fees for eBay for Charity listings. This is simply for your listing to show up on site. However, when your item sells, you will receive a discount on your insertion fees equal to the percentage donated.

Listing:

To sell an item on eBay, you need to create a listing. This is where you provide information about your item including: a title, photo, description, price, payment method and shipping information.

Listing Upgrade Fee:

In addition to standard selling fees, if you are using additional tools to enhance your charity listing, you are charged a Listing Upgrade Fee.

Managed Payments:

This means that eBay manages the end-to-end payments experience on-platform making life easier and the eBay experience more seamless for charity sellers.

PayPal Giving Fund:

This is a registered ‘not-for-profit’ platform that connects donors, businesses, and charities, in order to help charities raise new funds. We work directly with PayPal Giving Fund, who facilitate some payments, including Community Selling and Give at Checkout donations.

Pre-Approved Bidding:

For certain auction listings, for example a celebrity experience, we recommend charities have a pre-approved bidding tool applied to their listing. This requires bidders to secure your approval via email of their intent to bid and helps to dissuade those without authentic intent.

eBay for Charity

eBay for Charity connects charities to supporters across the UK and beyond, helping them raise vital funds to deliver essential campaigns and services for change.

Through eBay for Charity:

- 1 Charities can create an eBay Shop and directly sell items to raise money
- 2 Supporters can choose to add a donation to their purchase at checkout to any charity registered with us
- 3 eBay sellers can also choose to donate a percentage of the proceeds of their sales to any charity registered with us

Why be part of eBay for Charity?

It's free for your charity to register with eBay for Charity. You just need to have a confirmed PayPal charity account and sign up to PayPal Giving Fund. You'll then be automatically enrolled on eBay for Charity and your supporters can donate to you every time they shop on eBay.

Getting started

How to sign up to the PayPal Giving Fund

To register with the eBay for Charity Platform, you need to enrol with PayPal Giving Fund. Any UK charity with a confirmed charity account with PayPal can enrol with PayPal Giving Fund.

Enrolment steps:

- 1 To become automatically enrolled with PayPal Giving Fund, your charity needs to have a PayPal business account. The sign-up page can be found here
- 2 Once you have set up a PayPal Business account, you will then need to confirm that the PayPal account belongs to a charity. Becoming a confirmed charity with PayPal also enables charities to qualify for PayPal's special discounted charity rate. Find out more here
- 3 Your charity will then receive an email verifying that your charity status has been confirmed with PayPal, and your charity will be automatically reviewed for PayPal Giving Fund enrollment. If eligible, you will receive an additional email within 2 business days. This email will confirm your successful enrolment with PayPal Giving Fund

Any UK charity is eligible to enroll with PayPal Giving Fund but please note, Community Interest Companies (CIC) are not eligible.

How to Register your Charity

Once you are signed up to PayPal Giving Fund, you will then be verified to join the eBay for Charity platform. You will need the following in order to complete PayPal's registration and charity confirmation process.

Account holder's details:

- Email address (primary log in)
- Job title
- Date of birth
- Home address

Charity's details:

- Registered name
- Charity or OSCR number
- Company Registration Number (if you do not have a Company Registration Number please enter your charity number ending with a 0)
- Registered charity address
- Website URL
- Date charity was established
- Company letterhead

- Anticipated monthly donations (this can be a rough estimate of donations your charity currently receives each month)
- Letter of Authorisation (a downloadable template is available as you go through the charity confirmation flow)

Trustee/s details required:

- First and last name
- Date of birth
- Nationality
- Home address

Charity bank account information:

- Account number
- Sort code
- Or a Debit/Credit Card

Top Tips:

- You must be registered with The Charity Commission
- Before you sign up to PayPal Giving Fund, make sure your charity has a PayPal business account
- Registering on eBay requires a lot of information about your charity and the people that work there, so make sure you have gone through the checklist we've provided before you set off
- Once approved by Paypal Giving Fund, you will automatically be enrolled on eBay for Charity within 48 hours

Making the most of eBay for Charity

This section will walk you through the benefits of Give at Checkout, how to encourage your supporters to sell for you on eBay and simple steps to running a charity auction.

How to benefit from Give at Checkout:

Your supporters can choose to donate to your charity every time they shop on eBay. All they need to do is add a donation when they 'checkout'. However, currently, it is only applicable for supporters who use PayPal on their Android phone or desktop.

Your charity will receive the customer donations at the end of each month, with one single payment into your charity's PayPal account.

How Give at Checkout works:

Each week, we nominate a charity to appear at Give at Checkout but you can ensure you appear each time your supporter shops on eBay by asking them to 'favourite' your charity on their eBay account. Make sure you shout about this to your community of supporters – either on social media or through regular newsletters and updates.

If you would like to have the opportunity for your organisation to be featured as the Charity of the Week, please get in touch via this form.

Community Selling:

Anyone can help fundraise for your charity on eBay, all they need is an eBay account and a passion for your cause! One of the best ways is through Community Selling.

Community Selling is an opportunity for your supporters to sell to benefit your charity. They can simply select a percentage they wish to donate to you from the final sale price of their listed items, from 10%-100% and the equivalent amount in fees will be waived. You can read more about fees for Community Selling here. The seller is also responsible for the postage fee as per standard eBay process.

Galvanising support:

Just as you would shout about an awareness day or campaign you are working on, it's a great idea to raise awareness of the fact you are on eBay for Charity and that supporters can help raise vital funds for you either via the Give at Checkout function, as a Community Seller or supporting your eBay charity Shop. Why not shout about it in regular newsletters or on social media, sharing the tips below.

Drumming up support on social media platforms:

If your charity or organisation has social media channels set up, then you already have a ready-made audience keen to hear more about the great stuff you are up to. Don't be afraid to reach out via regular social posts to; encourage your community to sell on eBay and donate the proceeds to your charity, promote your auctions, raise awareness of your eBay Shop and let supporters know you are on Give at Checkout.

If you need any inspiration when it comes to social media posts that can help spring your supporter network into action, click here to see some example posts we have created to help you on your way.

Community Seller for the RSPCA, Charlie shares his Top Tips:

- Don't worry if your item's not a 'showstopper' – I've found that something small you no longer want or need is often what someone else is looking for
- Remember to favourite your preferred charity, so it's easy to donate to when listing
- Adjust the percentage you donate to your chosen charity, depending on the value of the item – the higher the better of course
- Always use eBay after a big clear out. Your preloved items can then raise money for a charity you love

High Profile Auctions:

High Profile Auctions are, put simply, auctions that are likely to get a lot of attention due to celebrity involvement or exclusive / high value items. They can be a great way of utilising the support of any celebrity ambassadors you may have, whilst raising awareness of your organisation around key moments.

Setting up a celebrity auction is easy enough to do if you follow the steps below. However, please let the team at ukcharity@eBay.com know when you plan to run one, ideally a few months in advance, so we can lend support on our social channels and if necessary put in place any additional support we think might be needed. This would apply to auctions with high profile celebrity items or experiences that may garner a lot of fan excitement and traffic, and potentially trigger our algorithms into thinking something is fishy and shutting the whole thing down. Nobody wants that!

What works well:

When it comes to High Profile Auctions, we know that memorabilia from a memorable or specific cult moment for fans works really well – whether it’s a guitar from a Glastonbury set, or the ball from an iconic football match. Celebrity meet and greets can also work very well, and see a lot of bidding, but remember to prepare some T&Cs.

What doesn’t work well:

General fashion does not tend to do as well with High Profile Auctions. For example, the iconic Union Jack dress that Ginger Spice wore to the Brits would do incredibly well, but just a dress that Geri owns? Perhaps, but not so much.

High Profile Auction checklist:

Below is a checklist of what you need in place before you get started:

- 1 Make sure you have an eBay account and that it is connected to your charity bank or PayPal account
- 2 Let us know you are running an auction (ideally 2 months in advance) and what you will be auctioning; we can advise what, if any protections, are required
- 3 List your unique items or experiences following the guidance in the ‘Getting Started’ section
- 4 Include high quality photos – if it’s a piece of memorabilia, try to get an image of the celebrity with the item
- 5 Include full terms and conditions – for example, any specific dates that the winner must be available if it is a meet and greet or experience
- 6 Include a comprehensive description of each item, following the guidance in the ‘Getting Started’ section
- 7 Double check you have let the eBay for Charity team know you are running an auction

Auction timing and duration:

eBay auctions can last for 1, 3, 5, 7 or 10 days. You choose what works best for you and your charity. However, in general we recommend running auctions for a 10-day period, starting on a Thursday evening and ending on a Sunday evening.

Schedule your listing in advance:

If you like to plan in advance, you can schedule your listings up to three weeks before you would like them to go live on eBay. This is a great option when things are busy as it's one less thing to think about.

Pre-Approved Bidding:

Pre-Approved Bidding is an additional feature that can be added to your auction on request and means interested fans or supporters need to request permission from you, or the email associated with the eBay account, before being able to bid. This helps to minimise the risk of fans getting overexcited in the moment and bidding, but who may later decide not to follow through with payment.

We suggest only using this when your auction includes:

- Experiences with celebrities
- Items from a 'marmite' celebrity or individual
- The target audience may pose a higher risk of not honouring the bid placed (e.g. young fans of popular musical acts)

How to add Pre-Approved Bidding and managing your Pre-Approved Listing

How to promote your High Profile Auction:

To help set you up for selling success with your High Profile Auction, you need to reach as wide an audience as possible. If you have a communications team in place, then you may want to skip this section, however if you don't have PR support in your organisation, we have created a template press release you can use to help get your message out to the media.

Top Tips:

- Give at Checkout is a great way to catch the eye of buyers at checkout and receive more donations. So remember to tell your supporters if you are featured or ask them to 'favourite' your charity
- Use social media to galvanise your supporters and shout about what you are doing on eBay for Charity. You can tag us on Twitter- @eBay4CharityUK and facebook- @eBayforCharityUK
- Organising a High Profile Auction can seem like a lot of work, so start early and make sure you let the eBay for Charity team know you are running one
- Take a look at our Media and Marketing materials designed to help you communicate your charity's campaigns to your supporters and the media

Direct Selling and opening a Shop

Setting up as a Direct Seller

To start Direct Selling, a member of your team needs to be authorised to sell on your charity's behalf.

To get set up and ready to sell, follow these simple steps:

- 1 Go to www.donation.eBay.co.uk/charity-admin
- 2 Click 'Connect with PayPal' which requires you to log in using your PayPal details
- 3 Upon successful login, click on 'Add a Direct Seller'
- 4 You will then enter your account's username twice. Finally, click 'Add a Direct Seller' and now you're all set to get selling!

Opening an eBay Shop:

If you are selling on behalf of a charity, you may want to open an eBay Shop where you can display all the items that you have to sell rather than creating individual listings. Another benefit is if one of your supporters decides to sell something with a percentage of the proceeds going to your charity, this will also appear in your eBay Shop.

This section will give you all the information you need when it comes to opening an eBay Shop, and how to keep on top of Shop fees.

How to set up your Shop:

With an eBay Shop, you'll have your own shop front on site, with a subscription level based on the tools and features you want – Basic, Featured or Anchor.

When you've chosen your package, here's how to open your Shop:

- Go to 'Choose a Shop' subscription in 'My eBay'
- Choose 'Select and review' underneath your chosen Shop package
- Enter your Shop name
- Select 'Accept fees and subscribe'

For more information, check out the Shops page in the Seller Centre.

Sandra Portas, Head of Commercial Services at Break, gives her Top Tips on how to take your physical charity shop online:

- Start by looking at what works for others when implementing your change from physical to digital shop, but then be prepared to review, change and adapt as time goes by
- Work out the most efficient back room processes that fit with your physical set-up. There isn't a one-size fits all approach, so it's worth taking time to get it right
- Plan in advance for what you want to sell, how you will source these items, how you will dispatch them and plan for the staff that you will need to make it happen. But remember that things always take longer than you think!

Transaction fees explained

If you are set up correctly and tick the '100% for Charity' box when you list. Then:

- 1 You will not pay any listing fees if it is the first time you have listed an item (fee is charged, then credited)
- 2 If an item doesn't sell and is relisted - you will pay listing fees for that unless you have a Shop subscription that gives you free listings. If you go over these free listings you will pay a listing fee
- 3 Remember that premium listing fees - like Promoted Listings and subtitles will be charged

As a charity, you will pay only one Final Value Fee, consisting of a variable percentage of the total amount of the sale (including shipping, taxes and any other applicable fees), plus a fixed charge per order. The charity rate is 1.1% +17p per transaction (VAT not included), and charities will not have to pay third party payment processing fees.

The Final Value Fee will be automatically deducted from the sales proceeds and the rest will be paid out directly to your charity's bank account.

Insertion Fees:

An item can be listed once and relisted once with no Insertion Fee charged. But if you choose to relist it a second time then you will be charged an Insertion Fee, and for every time it is relisted thereafter.

Upgrade	Description	Upgrade Fee per listing
Reserve Price	This is where you can set a Reserve Price (minimum £50) and your item won't be sold if bids don't reach that amount. This option gives you the peace of mind that your item won't be sold for less than you're willing to sell it for	4% of the Reserve Price (max. £150 per item), whether or not the item sells
Buy It Now Price	You can give potential buyers the option to purchase an item before an auction ends, for a set price. A Buy It Now Price gives you the option of a quick sale for the right money	50p
Subtitle	You can make your listing stand out from the crowd with a Subtitle; a line of additional text that appears beneath your listing title in the search results, to help attract buyers	£2
Gallery Plus	Catch a buyer's eye with larger pictures of your item, which will be visible in the search results when buyers move their mouse over your listing's thumbnail picture	£2.50 (Apart from in Clothes, Shoes & Accessories, Home, Furniture & DIY and Pet Supplies where this is free)
Listing in 2 categories	You can pay a small fee to have an item listed in more than one category. Useful if an item is tricky to pigeonhole!	35p
Scheduler	With the Scheduler option you can create your listing now and set it to go live at a future time of your choosing.	Scheduler is free for your first 1,000 listings per month. After that, it's 6p per listing.

Top Tips:

- Experiment with the listing upgrades and try adding a reserve price to more valuable items to give you some piece of mind that they will sell for a good price
- As you grow your eBay selling activity, it is worth opening a Shop which will give your charity a “window to the world” for a monthly fee. It’s a great way of attracting new buyers
- Remember not all products are free for charity, so remember to check before you upgrade

Keeping up momentum

Now you're all set up and ready to sell, this section will help you get on your way with listing your items on eBay for Charity.

How to best use item listings and descriptions:

It's important to list the item you're selling in the correct category and accurately choose your keywords so that buyers searching for what you are selling can find it easily.

When listing an item, type in a basic description of what it is into the 'Tell us what you're selling' box and eBay will then suggest a category for you. Here are some key things to keep in mind when listing:

- Aim to use all 80 characters available for the item's title
- Your first 3-5 words are the most important, so use them wisely
- Avoid putting words about price or service in your title e.g. "cheap" or "fast delivery"
- Look at other listings on eBay similar to your item that are high up on search pages and get ideas from their titles

When drafting your item's description, make sure you're following the steps below:

- Include a one sentence summary of what you are selling and think about the key points you want to convey in that very first sentence. It's the most important!
- Include details about your service. For example, your returns policy, or expected delivery time for the item
- Include as much detail as possible about the item's condition, especially if it has been used. Honesty is always the best policy

Richard Pattison, Online Operations Manager at Cancer Research UK, shares his Top Tips on how to scale your operations:

- Map out each stage of the journey an item needs to go on, to be listed on eBay, for example; Processing > Photography > Listing > Dispatch > Customer Service
- Resource your operation to 'How' you plan to complete the processes required to list an item
- To achieve consistent growth, you must ensure you maintain the balance between space, logistics and headcount. Increased costs or lost sales could be the outcome of poor planning in this area

Using photos:

Photos are key in attracting a buyer's attention, especially in a world where most buyers use their mobile phones to shop. Here are some suggestions on how to make the most of your photography, and remember, you can never have too many photos:

- Set up an area with a white background where you can take your photos easily without clutter; light boxes can be useful to get a clear shot. The eBay mobile app has a useful tool to remove backgrounds from images too
- Make sure you get a pack shot of each item, against a plain white background – this is an image of the item on its own, not in use
- Make sure you also get a lifestyle shot to show the item in use which can also give an idea of scale – clothes modelled on a mannequin or a person, for example
- Try to capture as many angles as you can; the front, rear, side, top, bottom, edges, seams, fasteners, instruction booklets, back of the box - the more images you show, the more confident potential buyers will be about making a purchase

For more information, check out eBay's Tips for taking photos that sell or their photography guide.

Buy It Now and auction functions:

Once you've listed your item, you need to consider whether to apply an auction or Buy It Now to your listing.

Buy It Now

When applying Buy It Now, remember that you can always enable offers so that buyers can make an offer which you can choose to accept or counter. Enabling offers is optional as managing this tool may be too time intensive for your team. Here are some important things to bear in mind when calculating what price to set your item at:

- Use eBay and other shopping websites to search for your item or a similar item and work out what price it usually sells for
- If you're searching on eBay, you can click the 'Completed Items' box, to see how much similar items have sold for in the past
- From the Seller Hub, you can click the 'Research' tab and type in keywords of items you want to see sales data for. There is more information on the Seller Hub in the 'Direct selling and opening a shop' section

Auctions

Auctions are a great option when:

- You have to clear stock quickly
- You have absolutely no idea what the item is worth or how to price the item
- You're confident this is an exceptional item (such as unique sporting memorabilia or items donated from a celebrity) that will attract multiple bidders

It's a good idea to promote your auction on social media to drive interest from your supporters. You should then start the auction at the lowest price you'll be happy selling the item for (and always remember to factor in postage costs!)

Find out more about listing on eBay

Top Tips:

- Your item's description is crucial in optimising your chance of a good sale, so it pays to spend time on this
- Good photos are important, and it may be worth investing in a white backdrop or a light box to make your photos stand out
- Don't be afraid of using auctions instead of Buy It Now, they can be really effective when you have some exceptional items to sell

How to grow your eBay Shop

So, you're all set up and selling successfully on eBay for Charity? This section provides all the information and tools you need to help expand your Shop further.

You will find information on:

- 1 How to provide a good service for your customers and encourage repeat visits and sales
- 2 Additional support you can use to boost sales

Read how British Heart Foundation grew a multimillion pound Shop on eBay

“Launching British Heart Foundation’s eBay store in 2006 was a vital decision for us, and one that has resulted in millions of pounds being raised to support our life-saving research. Our eBay Shop has helped us reach new audiences and get the very best price for items donated to us, whether that’s a limited edition record or a collectable antique. We’ve grown to become the largest online charity reseller in Europe - something we could only have dreamed of when we initially started listing a handful of items”

Andy Ostcliffe,
Online Operations Manager at
British Heart Foundation

Customer service and standards:

Every seller on eBay must ensure they are maintaining a good quality service for their buyers. If a good standard is not maintained eBay could temporarily or permanently suspend a seller's account. Learn more about eBay's seller standards.

Below are some tips for keeping your standards high on eBay. Customer service is so important, but we know these things can unintentionally slip within small teams so here is some advice on how to prevent this from happening:

- Extend your dispatch time to make sure that your items are being delivered on time, all of the time
- It's important not to list things you aren't 100% sure you have in stock and have ready to dispatch
- If a buyer complains that an item is not as expected, you should take more care with your photos and add as much detail as possible into your descriptions
- If a buyer opens a case against you, you should respond very quickly. Even if you don't have an answer to their query there and then, you should acknowledge that you have received it and are working on it
- Counterfeit is something that eBay takes very seriously and so we recommend that if you receive a 'designer item' and are not sure whether or not it is genuine, do some research online, get a second opinion and think before you list

Additional support to manage and boost sales:

The Seller Hub is the dedicated dashboard for business sellers and is useful if you are selling on site as a charity. It lays out all the information you need to run an eBay account that sells multiple items a day, and is a great tool to use when you start selling a high volume of items and you need help keeping on top of it all.

The Seller Hub also allows you to see what orders you have and what their status is, as well as alerting you to messages from buyers and keeping you on top of your standards and sales data. It's definitely worth your while spending some time on this area of the site, and becoming familiar with it as it will help manage your sales as things get busier.

Promoted Listings:

Promoted Listings are a useful way to ensure your items are more visible on site and can lead to increased visibility and hopefully, sales. However, you will get charged a fee for this, but only when your item sells. Promoted Listings are currently only available for fixed price listings. You are unable to use this tool on auctions or auction 'Buy It Now' listings .

How to add Promoted Listings:

- You can add Promoted Listings when you list an item, there are no upfront costs
- You can also add or amend Promoted Listings in the 'Listing' tab of The Seller Hub

Learn more about Promoted Listings here

Returns:

As a business, you have to accept returns and we recommend that your return policy is 30 days. If your item is not as described, you pay postage for the return but if the buyer has merely changed their mind, they should pay postage.

Learn more about how to manage eBay returns

Postage:

It's a good idea to calculate what your postage charges are going to be, and then add them to the selling price of your item, offering free postage.

Some helpful pointers:

- Any item worth more than £20 should be sent using a tracked service
- Postage scales can be useful and will save time

Explore the domestic and international postage options for eBay business sellers

Top Tips:

- The Seller Hub will be your eBay for Charity best friend – try to check it once a day
- As with all retail, good customer service is the key to success. Don't keep your buyers waiting for a response and make sure your dispatch process is swift and precise
- Counterfeit is taken very seriously by eBay so make sure you err on the side of caution

Still haven't found what you're looking for?

Have a specific question or query not yet covered in this guide? In this section, we have highlighted some FAQs we may not have gotten to yet.

I've signed up for eBay for Charity, why is my charity not coming up in the search bar on the website?

The process can take up to two weeks, but once PayPal has validated your charity, you'll receive an email confirmation from them and the following day you'll be automatically enrolled on eBay for Charity.

If you'd like to speak to someone in the meantime, we'd suggest getting in touch with PayPal's customer service team here.

Are there any item restrictions for charity listings?

Yes, there are some limitations on what items and categories can be included in an eBay for Charity listing. The Mature Audiences category can't be used and raffle or lottery tickets are prohibited. For a complete list, please go to 'Rules about Prohibited and Restricted Items'.

If a supporter is selling on behalf of your charity, then you have the right to ask that they remove an item if it falls into any of the above categories.

How do I change my charity's profile and logo?

Since eBay uses information provided by PayPal Giving Fund (your logo, mission statement, etc.) to display your charity's eBay page, changes to your name or logo must be made by logging into your PayPal Giving Fund dashboard and clicking Edit Profile.

How will we receive funds through Direct Selling?

With eBay managed payments, payouts are sent directly to the seller's bank account, eliminating the need to transfer funds from PayPal. Sellers can choose to schedule payouts weekly or daily, as funds are available. Payouts to seller bank accounts are initiated within two business days of an order confirmation, regardless of the buyer's payment method. More on eBay's managed payments here.

How will we receive donations through Community Selling?

Donations from Community Selling and Give at Checkout are received by PayPal Giving Fund and will be distributed to your PayPal account at the end of each month in a single payment. Donations received up to the 15th of the current month are distributed at the end of the current month. All donations can be viewed via your PayPal Giving Fund Dashboard.

How can we view the items being sold by Community Sellers for our charity?

Go to your charity's eBay profile via the Charity Search bar and you will see all the items currently for sale which benefit your charity.

Can multiple employees or volunteers use our eBay account?

Business sellers can use the Multi-User Account Access function which allows you to delegate access rights to users of your account. You can determine how much each user can access within your account, for instance 'read only' access for orders as well as the ability to create, edit and publish listings.

What can we do if we need to temporarily pause our eBay operations?

eBay's Time Away function gives you the ability to manage your eBay account if you need to take a break. You can manage your listings, delivery and dispatch times to reflect your time away. Checkout our Seller Centre page for more details.

Managed Payments

Q. What is managed payments?

A. Managed payments enhances the buying and selling experience on eBay by providing sellers with one place to sell and get paid, and buyers more ways to pay. For more content, see here.

Q. Why is eBay introducing managed payments?

A. With eBay managing payments, we are simplifying and streamlining the payments experience on eBay to enhance the overall customer experience for both buyers and sellers on our marketplace. For sellers, this means streamlined operations with one place to sell and get paid. For buyers, this means more flexibility and choice in how they pay, with more ways to pay than ever.

Q. Why is eBay moving to managed payments, rather than sticking with the current relationship with PayPal?

A. eBay and PayPal both came to fruition two decades ago, at a time when consumers were still getting used to entering their credit card information online. Times have changed significantly, and we recognize that managing payments is a key foundational component of modernizing our marketplace, one that provides the right flexibility to shape experiences between buyers and sellers.

Q. Why is eBay charging charities fees now?

A. Charities still benefit from eBay waiving standard listing fees. However, charity sellers using managed payments will no longer pay PayPal fees. Instead, they'll pay an updated Final Value Fee at a special charity rate, with no third party payment processing fees. Most charities' fees should be lower overall than they were before.

Q. How much will charities be charged now?

A. Once eBay starts managing payments, charities will pay only one Final Value Fee, consisting of a variable percentage of the total amount of the sale (including shipping, taxes and any other applicable fees), plus a fixed charge per order.

The charity rate is 1.1% +17p per transaction (VAT not included), and charities will not have to pay third party payment processing fees. Charities will now pay less than they were paying before.

Example for UK charity direct seller fee (Then vs. Now)

	Then	Now
Sale price	£51.00	£51.00
Postage	£8.00	£8.00
Total sale proceeds	£59.00	£59.00
Third-party processing fees (1.4% + 20p)	£1.03	-
eBay Charity Final Value Fee (1.1%+17p)	-	£0.82
Fee for charity direct sellers	£1.03	£0.82

NOTE: The eBay Charity Final Value Fee and third-party processing fee do not include VAT. For more information on VAT, please visit this page.

Q. Where will charities be able to find out more about the new rate and managed payments?

A. Charity direct seller fee information can be found here.

Q. How does managed payments differ from PayPal?

A. Before eBay managed payments, charity sellers had to juggle between two sets of accounts, reports, online tools, policies, and customer service. eBay now manages the end-to-end selling experience, including payments, meaning that charities will have one place to manage their sales activity every day. There are also no third-party processing fees for managed payments.

Q: What are the benefits to charities?

A. Managed payments make it simpler for charity sellers to get paid on eBay.

This means:

- No more PayPal payment processing fees
- Charities get paid directly to their chosen bank account, not their PayPal account
- Most charities will pay less in fees than before
- Charities can also access everything they need in one place: consolidated fees, customised reports, refunds and returns and labels. If you use third-party tools, there should be no change to how you use them.

Q. How long will it take to receive the money from sales?

A. With eBay managed payments, payouts are sent directly to the seller's bank account, eliminating the need to transfer funds from PayPal. Sellers can choose to schedule payouts weekly or daily, as funds are available. Payouts to seller bank accounts are initiated within two business days of an order confirmation, regardless of the buyer's payment method. More information on managed payments can be found here.

Q. How will this change charities' invoices?

A. eBay is now creating a simpler and more modern process to pay your eBay fees and expenses.

- Following your activation for managed payments, you will no longer receive a monthly invoice and your eBay selling fees and expenses will be collected from your processing and available funds
- If your processing and available funds are not sufficient to cover these amounts, we will charge your payment method on file (debit or credit card, and/or linked bank account)
- Examples of eBay selling fees include but are not limited to: Insertion Fees, Listing Upgrades, and Shop Subscription Fees
- You will be able to find information on fees and expenses via the reports functionality in the Payments tab in Seller Hub

You must still pay any outstanding amounts that are reflected on existing invoices.

Q. How much notice will you be giving charities before the change to managed payments takes place?

A. Charity sellers will be invited in phases to onboard to the managed payments platform and will be allowed several weeks within which to transition over to managed payments. Charities can decide when to initiate the onboarding, however eBay encourages sellers to migrate as soon as they receive the invitation, so that they can make use of the benefits of managed payments.

Q. When and how do charities register?

A. Sellers who have been identified as using eBay features and tools that are compatible with managed payments will receive a notification to join in the coming months. The notification will provide detailed instructions on the steps they must take to update and verify their account information.

Q. What happens if we miss this deadline to register?

A. If you receive a notification, we recommend that you register as soon as you can, to benefit from the managed payments platform. Eventually, all sellers will be required to migrate to managed payments.

Q. What happens if charities don't register? Can they stay with PayPal?

A. Managed payments is the new way to do business on eBay, and eventually all sellers will need to transition. Please see here for further information.

Q. What will happen to charities' PayPal accounts when they have changed to managed payments?

A. Donations to the charity from Give at Checkout and Community Selling will continue to be paid out through PayPal Giving Fund, to the charity's registered PayPal account.

Q. What will happen to charities' active listings when moving over to managed payments?

A. With managed payments, charities' active existing listings and buyer feedback will be automatically updated and will reflect the different ways buyers can pay.

Q. When items sell, will charities still receive credit for our Final Value Fees?

A. Once activated for managed payments, charities will pay an updated charity specific Final Value Fee, consisting of a percentage of the total amount of the sale, plus a 17p fixed fee per order. This fee is not inclusive of VAT. The Final Value Fee will be automatically deducted from the sales proceeds and the rest will be paid out directly to a charity's bank account. For more information on all applicable fees and how they are calculated, please click here.

Q. Once you introduce managed payments, will buyers still be able to pay with ApplePay, credit card or debit card?

A. Managed payments gives buyers a larger selection of payment options, such as credit cards, debit cards, Apple Pay, Google Pay and PayPal. This will all be done through eBay without a seller needing separate accounts to accept these payment methods. There will also be the option for buyers to save and store card information for future use. This experience will be similar to that of other online retailers. All payment options offered by eBay that are compatible with the buyer's device or browser will automatically show up during checkout.

Q. What happens if one of our Community Sellers is doing managed payments but we're not yet registered?

A. This should not affect charities. Community Selling proceeds will continue to be paid out through PPGF to the charity's PayPal account.

Q. How will charities receive payments from Community Sellers? Will this change?

A. This process is currently not changing, donations from Community Sellers benefiting charities will continue to be processed by PayPal Giving Fund. Once a month, PayPal Giving Fund will collect your donations made from the generosity of eBay sellers, and your charity will receive this payment into your PayPal account.

Q.What documents or information do I need in order to be prepared for managed payments?

A. Make sure you have the following handy to expedite your enrolment:

Nonprofit/ charity organisational details:

- Registered charity name and Charity number
- Registered address
- Phone number
- Email address
- Website URL
- Document for evidence of nonprofit organisation and written constitution of the organisation (as applicable)
- Charity's logo (maximum file size of 12MB, minimum quality for jpeg/jpg of 90%)
- Charity specific details such as organisation's donor/volunteer base, cause areas, and mission statement

Nonprofit/ charity's bank account details:

- Online banking access (if available)
- Account number (in the name of your charity organisation)
- Sort code

Primary contact (eBay account holder) & trustee details:

Primary contact is authorised to manage this eBay account on behalf of the nonprofit organisation. Charity trustees are the people who share ultimate responsibility for governing a charity and directing how it is managed and run. A trustee may also be the primary contact for the eBay account.

A trustee needs to authorise the primary contact to manage all eBay related activities on behalf of the nonprofit organisation. The letter of authorisation needs to be completed, printed on company letterhead and signed by a trustee. The sample letter of authorisation can be downloaded while going through the onboarding flow.

- Full name
- Date of birth
- Home address
- Job title
- Nationality
- Letter of authorisation (applicable if the account holder is not a trustee)

Q. Why is a business account required to onboard to Managed Payment?

A. In order to migrate your charity to managed payments, your account needs to be a business account. When you register for managed payments, you will be prompted to switch to a business account. There is no additional charge and you will now benefit from the special charity rate and all your seller history will be retained.

Q. What is included with a business account?

A. By upgrading your account, you will have access to additional features such as Seller Hub which allows you to manage your orders, optimise your listings and research and monitor your performance. You can find more details about business accounts here.

Q. Why do you need additional information from me aside from what you already have?

A. All of the information shared during registration allows us to send your payouts and comply with Anti-Money Laundering (AML) and know-your-customer obligations, which helps keep eBay a trusted marketplace. We will use and share the information you submit as described in the Payments Terms of Use. Learn more about how eBay protects your personal information.

Q. How does eBay use my ID information once verification is complete?

A. We protect your personal data through technical and organisational security measures to minimise risks associated with data loss, misuse, unauthorised access and unauthorised disclosure and alteration. To this end we use firewalls and data encryption, for example, as well as physical access restrictions for our data centers and authorisation controls for data access. You can find further information on our data security procedures in our Security Center.

Q. What if I am a new charity that is not set up yet?

A. If you are a new charity that is not on eBay yet, please click here for instructions to get you set up. By 2021, eBay will manage payments for most sellers, including charity sellers. Check your email address on file or My Messages on eBay for a notification from us to register and have eBay manage your payments. If you haven't received a notification yet and you are interested, please contact us at charityteam@ebay.com.

Q. Can I list on eBay sites outside of the UK?

A. You may create listings on select eBay sites outside of the United Kingdom, such as the United States (www.ebay.com), Canada (www.ebay.ca) and Germany (www.ebay.de). We will continue to expand international selling to more countries in the coming months. However, international buyers can still shop on ebay.co.uk if you ship internationally. For more details, click here.

That's it!

Hopefully you now have everything you need to get your charity up and running on eBay for Charity, though don't hesitate to get in touch if you need any more support.

Case Study: RSPCA

The RSPCA has been raising funds on eBay since 2006, growing and connecting with their vast online network of sellers along the way. Over the past five years alone, the animal welfare charity has raised near to £200,000 on eBay for Charity through Community Selling and Give at Checkout, providing vital funds alongside their 165 branches across the country. Through eBay for Charity, the RSPCA has built long lasting relationships with their Community Sellers, many of whom are now actively involved in other areas of the business as volunteers, regular donors or even employees! Following the huge success of the charity's Community Seller network, they're looking to also become a Direct Seller in 2021.

Kim, Senior Corporate Partnerships Manager at RSPCA, said:

“For any charity embarking on their eBay journey, it's important to remember that it can take a little while to build your network. Be patient and start by focussing on your regular supporters, who will be keen to get involved especially if they are already eBay users. eBay is a well-known and trusted name so it's an easy fundraising tool to communicate and something everyone can get involved in!

We've been thrilled with the support we've had from the eBay team; they're always very responsive and proactive in helping us promote on the platform. We are now listed as a favourite charity for 5,451 eBay users which is fantastic, and we hope to grow even more from here.”

Charlie, a Community Seller for RSPCA said:

“What I love about eBay is that it allows me to donate a percentage of anything I sell, to support a charity that I love. I'm a dog trainer and have met lots of wonderful dog owners who found each other through RSPCA so the charity is very close to my heart.

I think eBay is incredibly easy to use and find that there is always a buyer for the item you are selling. Whether it's a big haul after a clear out, or the odd item here and there – it makes me feel good as I'm not contributing further to landfill, and I'm raising funds for an amazing charity too!”

Ellie Clarke,
Corporate Partnership
Manager at RSPCA, shares her Top Tips:

- Choose your moment. Tie Community Selling promotions into something topical. Are there any times of the year when people might be more likely to sell on eBay? Spring cleaning is a great way to encourage your supporters
- Keep it simple. Understand how to sell yourself so you can easily communicate this to your supporters. If something sounds too complicated, it can put people off
- Tell everyone! Your friends and colleagues are your advocates and word of mouth is very powerful. Everyone has a charity that is dear to them, so tell people about it. Even if they don't support your charity, they may go on to tell someone else who does!

Checklist: Get Pre-Approved Bidding ready

Here is a checklist of what you need in place before you get started:

- Contact the eBay team (ukcharity@eBay.com) in advance so that we can add the feature to your account, and help to guide you through the following instructions
- Create your listings (note that the feature can only be applied to live listings) and set the minimum price to a healthy figure to minimise the admin
- Make a note of the item number for each listing that requires pre-approval
- Sign into eBay.co.uk and go to 'My eBay' > 'Account' > 'Site preferences' and scroll to 'Buyer requirements' under 'Selling preferences'
- Click 'Show', then 'Edit' beside 'Pre-approve a list of bidder/buyers for a particular listing'
- Click 'Add a new item'
- Enter your listing's eBay item number and a list of eBay user IDs you've pre-approved. Note, that to activate the feature, at least one eBay user ID must be listed. If you haven't pre-approved any bidders yet, simply enter your own eBay user ID
- Regularly monitor requests for pre-approval and respond quickly to interested bidders. Check for messages at least every hour for the first few days and as often as every few minutes on the last day, leading up to the completion of the auction
- Add additional users to your pre-approval lists as soon as you are satisfied that they are genuine. Navigate to 'My eBay' > 'Account' > 'Site preferences'; scroll to 'Buyer requirements' under 'Selling preferences', then click 'Show'. Click 'Edit' next to 'Pre-approve a list of bidders/buyers for a particular listing'. Click 'Edit' next to the listing you wish to update and amend your pre-approved list and then click 'Update changes'
- Notify bidders that they are eligible to start bidding
- Repeat these steps for each of your listings that requires pre-approval

Case Study: Families and Babies

Founded in 2010, Families and Babies is just one of the many charities who have successfully used eBay for Charity for vital fundraising, selling new and preloved donated toys and clothing. Founder, Elaine Edwards, shares her story:

In 2004, Elaine was struggling to find support as a new mum, after realising that new mums in her area felt the same, she set up the support group Families and Babies to provide a community for mothers struggling with antepartum and postpartum.

In 2010, she took the decision to convert the non-profit organisation to Charity Status to begin fundraising, and the charity has since blossomed into a national support system for families. To increase revenue for the charity, Families and Babies launched its eBay Shop later that year, selling new and gently used donated toys and clothing.

Elaine says:

“When I started the eBay Shop, the charity’s primary income was through council funding, but I soon realised that this money wouldn’t last forever and turned to eBay to make the charity more self-sufficient. I believe the secret to eBay success is putting in the time and research to see how other eBay sellers are listing.

Since starting our eBay journey in 2010, our sales have grown to £18,000 a year, which has helped Families and Babies set up new support groups for 1,000 families across the UK, hire one paid member of staff and buy a warehouse for our stock. If you’d told me this 10 years ago, I wouldn’t have believed you, but it just goes to show that anything is possible!

< Go Back

Elaine's Top Tips:

- Make sure you research the items that you are going to list and see how much other sellers are selling the same item for, so you can offer competitive prices
- Don't think "that will never sell" because you will always be surprised by what people buy
- Dedicate just one person to listing on your eBay for Charity store, you don't need a large team of people to get it off the ground, we had one person at the beginning and we've gone from strength to strength

Case Study: British Heart Foundation

British Heart Foundation has been successfully selling on eBay for Charity for 14 years, raising more than £20million in total. After setting up on eBay in 2006 from two rooms above a shop in Halifax, the British Heart Foundation's e-commerce success has gone from strength to strength.

Through eBay for Charity, the British Heart Foundation has now raised £20.5million in total since opening on eBay and their rapid expansion has seen them expand their team of dedicated listers from 6 to 36 and move into a 21,000 sq ft warehouse in Leeds, introducing automation to support the BHF eBay team keep up with orders. The charity now lists approximately 5,500 items on eBay every week and dispatches anywhere between 3,500 and 4,000 items in the same period.

Their 750 charity shops around the country send their unique and quirky treasures to the eBay operation centre where items are likely to achieve a higher price, as eBay buyers from around the world come in search for more specific items than highstreet amblers.

Take an inside look at British Heart Foundation's eBay warehouse

< Go Back

Andy Ostcliffe, Online Operations Manager at British Heart Foundation says:
“We’ve come a long way since setting up on eBay and are now the biggest online charity shop outside of the United States.

Once items arrive at the warehouse, members of the team photograph them and list them on eBay, doing extra research if necessary, to help best describe them. Items must be carefully filed so they can be found again when the auction is over. Then the item will be packed and dispatched to the winning bidder. If it’s a large item, such as furniture, it will often stay in the shop and be advertised on eBay for collection from that particular store.

eBay has given us the opportunity to target 190 million potential customers around the world and this has helped us raise more funds than would have been possible trading through our charity shops alone.”

Explained: Promoted Listing Fees

When you set up Promoted Listings on an item, you get to choose a percentage rate. This is how much of the sale price plus postage you would pay in fees. For example, an item selling for £10 with free postage, with a Promoted Listing rate of 7%, would mean paying a fee of 70p.

Please note that while charity sellers mostly pay no fees for selling, if you choose to use Promoted Listings, you will be charged the percentage you set, and you'll need to factor this into your pricing.

You only pay for Promoted Listings when you sell to someone who has clicked on one of your sponsored listings.

Social media best practice guide

We've created a quick guide on the primary roles of each social media channel and how you can best use them to help you achieve your charity's goals.

Facebook is a key channel to promote your charity and to engage with your supporters.

Your charity can benefit from the channel by creating events to share with your supporters such as fundraising events, host Q&A's using Facebook live and sharing video content on the platform.

Twitter is the main channel for real-time content and conversations. This is where you can share news and announcements about your charity.

You can engage easily with your supporters, partners and ambassadors here, by simply liking and retweeting their posts.

Instagram is a visual platform, created for photos and videos. This is where you can be the most creative with your content.

Instagram Stories lets you share photos or videos for up to 24 hours and is a great way to build authenticity with your audience. Try some behind the scenes content from your charity, showing what you get up to day to day.

The following tips can help you make the most out of each social channel and will benefit your supporters.

- 1 Look for and seize a live broadcast opportunity to have with your supporters. You could host a regular Q&A: asking your supporters to tune in with their questions. This could help you to understand your audience better
- 2 Post 3-4 times a week, utilising photography and video content that best represents your charity
- 3 Limit your post copy to 80-100 characters for maximum engagement

- 1 Take advantage of the in-the-moment nature of the channel, reacting to cultural trends and awareness days such as #SmallCharityWeek, #WorldEmojiDay, #GivingTuesday
- 2 Follow ambassadors and partners of your charity and engage with their content. If you engage with their content they're more likely to engage with yours!
- 3 Post 1-2 times a day, retweeting relevant content when it mentions your charity

- 1 Showcase the milestone moments and big achievements that mean the most to your charity and help the cause. You could also include quotes from those benefitting from the charity, to help humanize the brand and bring it to life
- 2 Post 3-4 times a week, using 1-2 relevant hashtags per post
- 3 Utilise Instagram Stories to give your supporters a behind the scenes peek into your charity

Content Ideas

Here are some sample posts that you can customise for your own channels and campaigns. Make sure you adapt the copy so it's in your charities tone of voice.

Monday	#MondayMotivation – share quotes from those benefitting from your charity, to help humanise the brand and bring it to life
Tuesday	#CharityTuesday – one of the sector’s main hashtags, which can be used to help drive awareness of your charity
Wednesday	#WednesdayWisdom – a good way to anchor statistics about your cause
Thursday	#DidYouKnow – a good way to create engaging posts and ask questions to your audience
Friday	#PhotoOfTheDay – a great way to demonstrate some of the positive impact your work is having

Top 5 topics to post on a weekly basis

- 1 eBay for Charity posts – what are you selling on eBay this week? Are there a few hero items that you can share on social media? Choose 5 of your top items to post, including links that go directly to your items
- 2 Auctions – be sure to make as much noise around your auctions as you can on social media, to help drive interest to potential bidders! Ask any charity partners and ambassadors to share on their social profiles too for maximum awareness
- 3 Supporter stories - bring to life your supporter's fundraising stories. Ask them before their fundraiser to take photos and videos which can then become a weekly highlight such as #FridayFundraiser
- 4 Celebrate & thank your donors – use photos, videos and quotes to show your charity in action so your audience can see how their donations can help your organisation pursue its mission. Videos are particularly powerful here to help project your message
- 5 Influencer & ambassador support – work with an influencer and / or ambassador to advertise your charity on their social platforms. This way your charity is reaching a whole new audience

Media Relations

To help set you up for selling success on eBay, you need to reach as wide an audience as possible with news of your online shop. One way to raise awareness is through the media. If you have a communications team in place, then you may want to skip this section, however if you don't have PR support in your organisation, the following guidance will give you the basic tools to engage the media.

Please see an example press release below, which can be used to help promote a High Profile Auction. Download template here.

eBay for Charity boilerplate

A 'boilerplate' is information you can include at the end of every press release or media alert which provides additional information about the charity or, in this instance, eBay for Charity, which you may not have space to cover in the actual press release. Please feel free to use the below when you need to provide more information about eBay for Charity in any of your comms.

About eBay for Charity

eBay for Charity harnesses the power of eBay's community to raise money for charitable organisations. Through the programme, charities can sell items to boost their fundraising, sellers can donate a percentage of their proceeds to a charity of their choice, while buyers can add a donation to their purchase during checkout. To date, eBay's community has raised £160 million for UK charities.

Newsletters

Capitalising on key calendar moments is a great way to galvanise supporters and encourage them to help you raise funds through eBay. We have drafted some example copy you could include in your marketing collateral to engage with more supporters. Download examples here.

How to sell better for charity on eBay

Your supporters can choose to donate a percentage of their sale to your charity from 10 – 100% Why not share some of the tips and tricks below with them to boost their sale and your donation!

Key words are key!

eBay.co.uk automatically looks for words in the listing's title only, so it's crucial to write your listing using keywords people are likely to search for - especially brand and product names.

Choose the right category for your product.

This might sound obvious but be as specific as you can and if you think it should appear in more than one category, you can pay a fee to do this and maximise your product's visibility.

Photos are so important

Users will not bid on items they cannot see as they want to make sure the item they are purchasing is as described, so be sure to provide images from a variety of angles, as well as close-ups and feature details.

Timing, Timing, Timing!

Get the timing right. Schedule your listings to end on Sunday, when people are likely to be at home. Avoid times when people are busy, such as weekday mornings, or any big events such as sports matches or TV finales.

Postage costs

Consider the impact of postage costs in advance. If you don't offer free postage, you will need to pack your item, then weigh and measure it so you can calculate postage costs. Use the eBay postage estimator service to check your pricing.
